 * Tower bell instruments in this *
 * geographic area include those in *
 * the following places: *
 * Denmark *
 * Færoe Islands *
 * Greenland *
 *
 * These instruments are organized *
 * in three sections, as follows: *
 * Existing carillons *
 * Chimes (8 to 22 bells) & rings *
 * Other places of interest *
 * (in M.I.L. only) *
 * Within each part, sites are listed *
 * alphabetically by city and country. *
 * The country name of Denmark is *
 * tagged to indicate major regions: *
 * -J Jylland (western mainland) *
 * -F Fyn (central island) *
 * -S Sjaelland (eastern island) *
 * Un-tagged sites are on the various *
 * minor islands, or are unknown. *

NOTE: To maintain correct sort order, most diacritical marks are omitted from site names; alternate spellings are used when appropriate for the language. The proper diacritical marks are used in other places.
 (Example: Ålborg = Aalborg)

 Telephone country codes:
 Denmark 45
 Greenland 299

NOTE: An administrative realignment in 1970 changed many boundaries and some district names, reducing the historic counties ("amts") from 20 to 14.
 Another major change in 2007 replaced
 the amts with 5 regions.
 The naming found below is a random mixture of the old and the new, depending in part on the age of the source of the information.

*Remarks: Automatic chime of 1619 destroyed by fire in 1859. Carillon by vanAerschodt may have been automatic only until a Klavier was supplied in 1911.
Replacements from 1915 (or 1909-17?)
are by De Smithske; an old report of bells by Sorensen appears wrong - may have been an installer. One bell (not identified) was "given away" before 1955. All restored and rehung on new frame in 2005 by Thubalka, with new clavier by Eijsbouts, who lightly retuned the old bells and supplied some replacements [not yet identified];

new keyboard and frame have space for future addition of four trebles.
Lower belfry (beside clavier room and 20-hammer drum) has 4 swinging bells by Anker Heegaard, 1863; 3 also serve as clock bells. In carillon belfry is a huge pot-shaped hour bell (year and maker not recorded).
