 Organ concerts Mon-Sat 1200;
 Mon,Tue,Thu,Sat 1730; Wed,Fri 1900;
 may or may not utilize these tubes.
 *Remarks:
 Tower tubes by Deagan, comprising the "Major Chimes" stop of the largest pipe organ in the world, and the only Deagan set with more than 32 notes;
 electro-pneumatic action, built by the Wanamaker organ shop (not by Deagan), with the pneumatic impact of the hammers controlled by expression pedal.
 One of only three sets located indoors.
 Originally hung in the back of the Ethereal Division, and so under expression with that division.
 Relocated in 1920s to present exposed position on either side of that division.
 An additional tower chime tube, sounding low A, is in the Echo division and under expression with pipes of that chamber; it was supplied by R.H.Mayland

 as a promotional sample.
 The "Minor Chimes" stop is a recycled set of orchestral tubular bells (i.e., thin-walled), also by Deagan; planned to be replaced by a set from an Aeolian organ that is closer to this organ's A-435 pitch.
 The Wanamaker store closed in Aug.1995,
 reopened as Lord & Taylor Aug.1997;
 becoming a Macy's store in Aug.2006.

NEW YORK - R USA - NY

 Roxy Theatre
 Broadway
 New York, New York, USA
 *Remarks:
 When built, this was the grandest of all the early 20th century grand theaters. Its 3-console pipe organ was connected to Deagan tubular bells in a rooftop tower, under expression so that the sound could be directed into the theater or outside.
 The longest tube was 21 feet.
 The demolition of this theater and its tower, some time between 1956 and 1960, began the wave of destruction that swept away the majority of these palaces of entertainment.
